1. ICP Welcome (for Executive, Council; Conferences; meetings of the ICP)

The ICP have developed two ‘welcomes’ for use by members of the ICP at various forums. Council agreed that this was a good way to promote ICP and acknowledge cultural differences.

- i. We come together as an international community of leaders, united by our common purpose of learning from one another, advancing the cause of school leadership and improving outcomes for young people worldwide.

Throughout our time together we will be inclusive and affiliative, valuing the contribution of everyone.

We thank our hosts for their hospitality and commit ourselves to respecting their culture, traditions and values during the time we spend with them.

Powerful Partnerships

Anna Pons from the OECD provided valuable input on the Global Teaching Insights project. The power point will be available at www.icponline.org

She stressed that the OECD wants to work with ICP and asked the question:

What can OECD do to support the profession be better at what they do?’

‘We have to make sure that all of the great ideas are available to everyone’ (Anna Pons; 2019).

Other Considerations:

Launch of new ICP Website:

The new contemporary ICP website www.icponline.org was launched. This will allow a more flexible forum for engagement with members. Members were encouraged to provide articles, activities and promotions to populate the website.

Launch of new ICP promotional video:

A new promotional video has been produced by the ICP for use by members and to promote ICP. This was very well received and will be placed on the website.
