How do you plan to use demographic data to support safe schools, human rights and equity?

“ Using demographic data helps us identify inequities, target supports and advance safe schools, human rights and equity. By examining patterns across student groups, we can better understand experiences, monitor outcomes, identify disproportionalities and evaluate the impact of our practices and interventions. This evidence-informed approach strengthens accountability, supports equitable access to opportunities and resources and helps ensure that every student experiences a safe, inclusive and welcoming learning environment where all can thrive. ”
